

CONTENT PRODUCTION

WORKFLOW

GOH CONSULTING

Goal: Turn raw footage into short and long-form content that retains and converts leveraging a repeatable production line that runs on autopilot.

In this SOP, we'll cover everything from: the exact systems we use, how content flows and gets tracked, the post production process, and how we repurpose long-form videos into short-form.

Overview

There are 3 Main Parts to our Content Production Workflow.

- Hiring & Management: building a Creative Team of A Players and the tool stack required
- Content Systems & Tracking: the pipeline from idea to posted, and how we measure performance
- Clipping Process: turn every long-form video into a backlog of intentional short-form videos

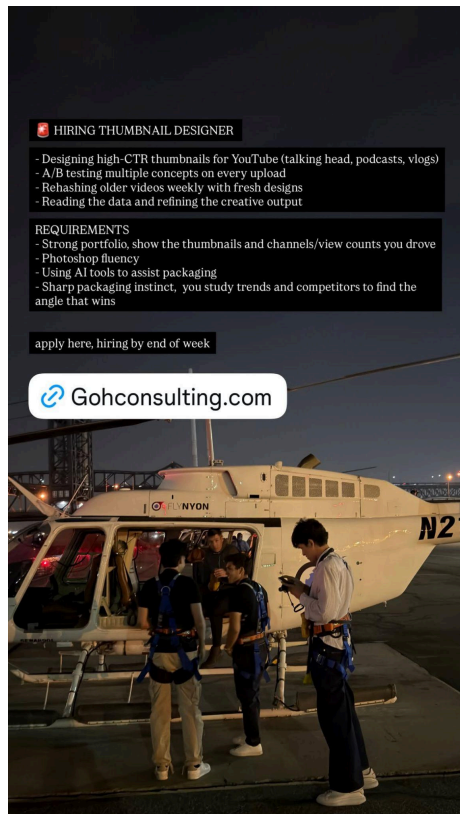

1 - Hiring & Management

Our team and system runs completely on autopilot. This is the exact team and tool stack we leverage to ensure content gets filmed, clipped, edited and posted with minimal friction.

The Team

Finding talent is easy when you have a personal brand. Anyone who applies from your audience is already sold on you and the brand, so expectations are easy to set. Every single person in my team came through the brand.

If we're looking to hire for a specific role, we run a simple story sequence that looks something like this:

Hiring Story Framework

- Line 1: Name the role you are hiring for
- Line 2: List the expectations for that role
- Line 3: List your role experience & understanding requirements
- Line 4: CTA to apply (Link or DM)

Alternatively, you can access our Private Talent Database below:

Make sure to use the filters to find someone who aligns with your company and what you are looking for.

Eg. able to work 5+ hours per day and edits on Premier Pro & After Effects

Team Structure

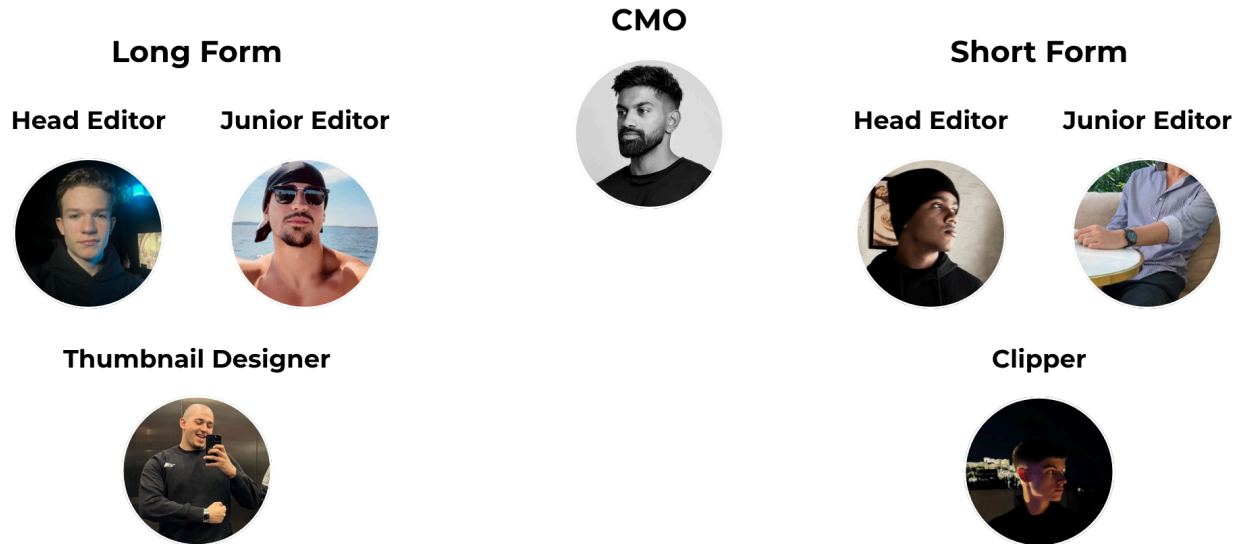

As you scale your brand and build your team, it should be structured something like this:

- Short Form Editor: average rate is $20 - $30 Per Video
- Long Form Editor: average rate is $100 - $250 Per Video depending on the format and complexity
- Thumbnail Designer: initially this can be the long form editor. A base rate per video for multiple thumbnail variations is $100-$250
- Clipper: initially this can just be the short form editor but should be hired when you're pushing content at scale. They are usually offered a base rate.

DON'T HIRE a creative director until you've scaled upwards of $100k/month.

The reason why is because you're still the brain behind the brand and you'd have to lead a CD anyway. If you don't have a strong understanding of your brand, it's just a case of the blind leading the blind.

Here's an overview of our Internal Team and their Responsibilities:

Team Management

When managing a team, you need to set very clear expectations and have a strong accountability system in place. To do this, we recommend having 2 key systems in place:

1. Team Calls

- This is by far the most important factor when actually building team culture
- We like to host 3x Calls per week with our Creative Team on Monday, Wednesday and Friday
 - Note: the Mon/Wed call should include ALL Team Members where as the Friday call should be for Senior Team Members ONLY

2. EOW Report

- Creatives like to work at their own speed and don't want to have to fill in a form at the end of each day (contrary to sales teams) so we found an EOW form allows us to hold the team accountable without draining them
- Here's the Questions we ask and KPIs we track in our EOW Report

- Number of Videos Completed
- Number of Videos Edited
- Number of Videos Revised
- What are you working on at the moment?
- What do you need help with?

Tools

These are the exact tools we use to streamline the production process and ensure our creatives have access to everything they need:

Frame.io → Review System

Notion → Main Content Dashboard

VidIQ → YouTube SEO

Canva → Design

Scheduling & Analytics (Optional) → Metricool

2 - Content Systems & Tracking

Once you have the team in place, it is crucial that you have systems that are optimised for producing content at scale. This is an overview of the exact systems we use in our day to day content production. We've spent over 2+ years perfecting these.

Main Dashboard

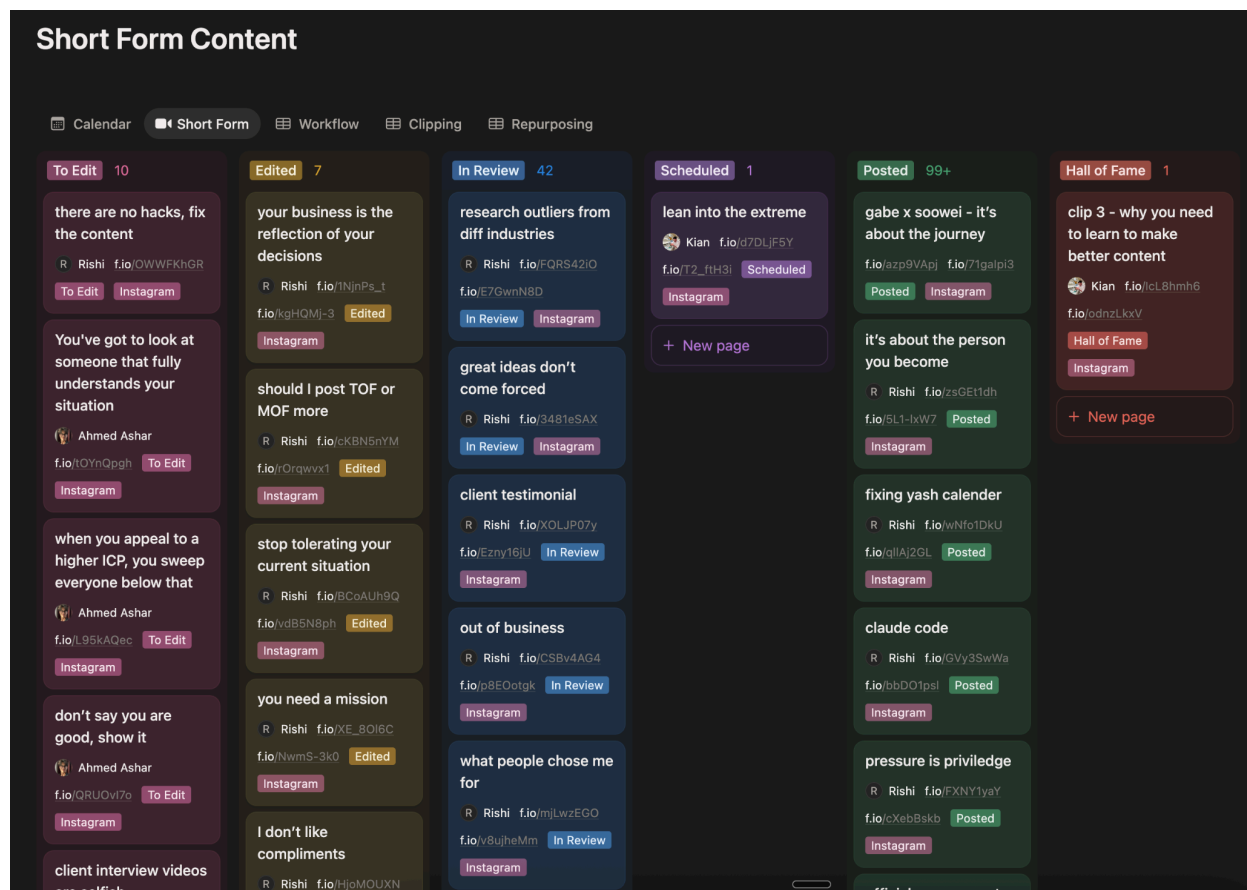

We hold everything in a centralised Notion Dashboard. This includes: ideation, editing and tracking.

Below is our Editor Dashboard. This allows us to assign editors videos and see what videos are in the pipeline.

Here's step-by-step how we use this:

1. We upload the raw footage to Frame, create a share link, and create a new tab on Notion
2. In this tab, we link the Raw Footage, tag an Editor so they are notified they have a video to edit and sometimes link a Reference Video so they understand how to execute the editing
3. As the editor completes the work, they will add a link to the edited video and move the tab along the pipeline

And that's the exact system we use to go from raw footage to edited video.

Tracking

Once we've published the content, it is extremely important that we track the performance. This allows us to understand what videos perform well versus what videos do not and consistently adapt our strategy.

We've built 2 Main Trackers that allow us to generate predictable views and lead flow by being intentional with our content:

1. Growth Tracker → here we take all of our outlier videos and reverse engineer why they performed well
- We track everything from the hook, transcript, topic, format etc so we know what to double down on in our future videos

- This gets filled out by a member of our Content Team at the end of every month

2. ICP Tracker → here we list every ICP Follower we have generated and track which videos they came from
- This allows us to double down on the videos that generate the most ICP Followers resulting in us having predictable lead flow

3 - Clipping Process

Chances are, you're tight for time when producing content. Maybe it's because you're still in school or you're focused on fulfillment but in reality, there's no excuse not to be posting quality content consistently.

That's why we developed a clipping process that allows us to take long form videos and convert them into intentional short form clips that speak directly to our ICP and have viral potential.

You can access the exact Clipping SOP we use below:

<https://docs.google.com/document/d/1lO6FfBNDqO9BdYDqJ3lWbL8RV2uWhn0HWCHTR99-Kfw/edit?usp=sharing>

Here's how it works:

- Drop the long-form transcript into Claude
- It pulls the strongest moments and scores them
- Then the clipper cuts each one and hands it off to a Short Form Editor

Quick checklist

Run this when setting up your Content Workflow. Every box should be a yes:

Team & Management

- ☐ Every creative role you need is filled (short form editor, long form editor, thumbnail designer, clipper)
- ☐ You're hiring from your own audience first via the Hiring Story Framework (role → expectations → requirements → CTA)
- ☐ Team calls are scheduled 3x/week (Mon/Wed for all, Fri for seniors only)
- ☐ EOW Report is live and tracking: videos completed, edited, revised, current focus, blockers
- ☐ Tool stack is set up and the team has access: Frame.io, Notion, VidIQ, Canva

Content System & Tracking

- ☐ Centralised Notion dashboard holds ideation, editing, and tracking in one place
- ☐ Raw footage flows: uploaded to Frame → share link → new Notion tab → editor tagged → reference video linked where needed
- ☐ Editors move tabs along the pipeline and attach the edited link as they go
- ☐ Growth Tracker is being filled monthly by the Content Team (hook, transcript, topic, format on every outlier)
- ☐ ICP Tracker is being filled daily by the Appointment Setter (every ICP follower mapped back to the video that drove them)
